When you get older there are certain things that inevitably change. Some people have kids, others get married, some run away and never look back. One thing is for sure, your body starts aching, time runs faster, mornings are tougher and the good old times keep on getting better.

Nowadays there's a generation of kids that can say their dads used to get on their boards. Some still do. Often these are individuals that are so passionate, that their energy has channeled into whatever paths they've chosen to take in their lives. Inside there's still a fire that keeps on burning and the outside is trying to keep up.

Between these pages is a group of people that have pursued their dream and kept it going. A group that has influenced a generation or more of kids, who are now getting close to taking similar steps themselves. They've been a part of paving the way. A way where the journey is more important than the destination. A way that is recorded in the memories and dusty VHS tapes belonging to these kids.

We believe that it is key to follow your passion. That's why we are more than honored to feature these originators in our look book.

MAKIA is rooted in board sports, music and fashion in equal measure, defined by none of these but influenced by all.

- MAKIA -

Enjoy life.

Chris Dufficy

With one of the greatest comebacks in recent snowboard history, Duff's ear-to-ear smile reminds us what an amazing person he is. This Canadian powerhouse recently became a part-time fireman and reaches out to kids by educating them through his own experiences and knowledge on going HUGE.

As the Gonz put it: "The Original Coolist". Trasher Magazine's Skater Of The Year in 1992, John defines what skateboarding is in it's rawest form. After suffering a serious back injury in 2003, he was told he would never walk again. John proved everyone wrong and emerged on two wheels for the fixed gear film "Macaframa". Nowadays he run's his own bike company www.brakefreecustoms.com and still charges hard. Respect.

Jeff Brushie

Brushie broke into the scene on the early 90's, as one of snowboarding's first "freestyle superstars". He was famous for his dreadlocks and impeccable style. Jeff went on to sign one of the largest contracts, at the time, with Ride Snowboards. Nowadays he lives in San Diego with his family, and still searches for fresh powder from time to time, while he's not judging snowboarding events, photographing poker players, and resurrecting the VTSP. As Jeff put's it; "Once self-employed, always self-employed".

Scotty Wittlake

Scotty had enough at the very top. His quiet resistance against the athletic and calculative trajectory of snowboarding reminds us why it is sometimes better to get back to the basics. Style, always over milliseconds, inches and feet. Now, back in the picture on his own terms, Scotty is backing companies like Holden outerwear, and enjoying past-time activities such as freight train hopping. Jim Rippey

The Evel Knievel of snowboarding. Last decade, Rippey was busy hucking himself off of cliffs and bridges, and backflipping snowmobiles. These days, a family man, he has found his calling as a Pastor at the Nondenominational Christian Church in Reno. God Bless!

Steve Olson

This is the second time we feature the legendary skateboarder and artist Steve Olson in our catalogue. The first time he made us a painting. This time we bought it off him. Keep the Art coming Olson, we'll be back for more.

KALLE CARRANZA

Kalle Carranza was born in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico and grew up surfing the desolate beaches of Mexico's Pacific coastline. He started surfing at the age of 9 and never looked back. At 15 he got his first clothing sponsor; sunglasses, shoes and board accessories sponsorships came soon afterwards. After winning the Mexican Junior Nationals, Kalle moved to San Diego, California to chase the professional surfer dream. Shortly afterwards Kalle went on vacation to Oahu, Hawaii and ended up extending his vacation to surf some of the world's most famous surfbreaks.

Kalle got his first 2 page spread in Surfer Magazine in 2000 and was voted as one best 100 young surfers in the world in Surfer Magazine's Hot 100 Poll. He continued traveling the globe competing, and being featured in numerous surf magazine articles all over the world. At 23 Kalle signed a 5 year deal with Reef Clothing and shoes and became a key figure in their marketing campaign being used in magazine ads, posters, and movies.

Kalle has 9 international surf covers to his credit, including Surfer Magazine, Surfer's Journal, Waves Magazine, Surfeurope and Surf0s amongst others.

At 28 years of age, Kalle grew tired of the surfing lifestyle and decided to move to Finland to study for his BBA. Currently Kalle is a year from graduating from University, working as an intern at Makia Clothing and still trying to surf as much as possible.
